THE CLOSE GRAY HOMICIDE. This morning, in the Criminal Court, Judge Humphreys, the case of Lewis G. Close, indicted for manslaughter in causing the death of John W. Gray on the night of the 16th of April, 1872, was taken up-Mr. Harrington prosecuting, and Senator Hill, of Georgia, and Judge J. W. Moore for the defence. The following inrors were sworn: Christopher S. O'Hare. John L. Brooks, Richard T. Johnson, Jesse Appler, James E. Lyddane, Gustavus Hartig, Hiram S. Thos. J. Holtzclaw, Adam Kieseker, and Geo.

This case will be remembered by the readers of THE STAR: Close was released by Judge Cartter on bail shortly after his arrest, and the indletment charging murder was quashed in January, 1873. Subsequently another indict-ment charging manslaughter was found, and it is on this indictment that he is now on trial. The first witness was Dr. A. J. Borland, who testified to attending the deceased, and finding a wound made apparently with a knife-blade a quarter of an inch wide and one and three-quarter inches in length, between the 5th and

Other witnesses testified to the effect that there had been a difficulty between the deceased and accused in Oyster Bay (south side of Pennsylvania avenue, between 12th and 13th street) and when Close left Gray pursued him and they grappled, Close falling on top.

THE CAMP-MEETING SEASON-Preparators Meeting .- The members of the Methodist church in the District and surrounding country have commerced preparations for the campmeeting which it is proposed to hold at Washington Grove, near Gaithersburg, on the Point of Rocks branch of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, commencing on the 5th of August, and continuing ten days. During the past few weeks the committee on grounds have been laying off the site of the camp according to a new plan. This plan changes the plat of the camp from that of square with straight avenues, to that of an octagon, with radiating avenues, eight in num-ber, entering upon the enlarged and beautified court. This change has been effected in order to give greater beauty, convenience, and adaptation for camp purposes. The avenues will be lighted with gasoline chandeliers and large head-lights, such as are used upon railroad engines. Mass meetings, for the purpose of awakening greater interest in the religious ork of the campmeeting, are to be held in the different churches of the city, and the first was held at the Foundry last night, at which there was a large audience present, including repre-sentatives from several other churches. After devotional exercises Rev. Richard Norris, of Waugh chapel, Rev. Dr. Craven, of the Central Pennsylvania conference, Mr. E. F. Simpson, f the Foundry, Rev. Wm. Burns, of the Foundry, Mr. L. W. Worthington, of McKendree, and Mr. Alex. Ashley and Rev. E. E. Owen, of Union, made addresses. It was announced that a union picule of the Methodists of the District would be held at the camp grounds on the coming Fourth of July. DISTRIBUTION OF AWARDS TO-DAY.
As early as 8 o'clock this morning the friends of this institution began to arrive at the seminary, corner of 70th and G streets, to witness the annual distribution exercises, and by nine o'clock, the hour for commencement, the three large class reems, which had been thrown into one, were densely crowded with visitors, and in the passageways were scores, who were only within hearing distance, There are about 200 pupils in this school, and their friends must have been satisfied with the exhibition to-day. They all did their best, and they all did excellently. Arrayed in white, with blue silk sashes and neck ribbons and artificial wreaths of white flowers and gold upon their heads, the girls presented a beautiful sight. The exhibition of needle work was very intereeting. This is the largest school of its class in the city, and 89 of the pupils will be promoted. The following is a list of the awards to the most

The furniture and property in the hall of the House of Delegates was left in charge of Messenger Henry Beverly, an old celored man, who has been employed about the hall ever since the first House was organized; a young white man named Wm. B. Sayres, who is acting as a substitute for his father, Wm. Sayres, one of the messengers, who has been at home sign for some messengers, who has been at home sick for some time, and the third is a poor old cripple, who uses two crutches, named James Gates. Beverly says orders were given him by Speaker Shepherd to take charge of everything, and not to let anything go out of the hall. Some time after two o'clock Andrew Gleason came, and ordered Sayres to help him take the clock down. This is a very flue clock, costing 60, which was fastened upon the wall opposite the Speaker's desk. Sayres declined, and sail he had no authority to do so. Gleason called him a — of a —, and said he could take it without him, at the same time handing an order to Beverly, of which the following is a copy : WASHINGTON, June 22, 1874 .- The sergeantat-arms or watchman at the House of Delegates is hereby authorized to give the clock now in the hall of the House of Delegates to the bearer, Andrew Gleason. McCa Gleason in unfastening the clock from the partition wall, and in doing so they split the back of it, and Gleason took it away. Just after this a furniture wagon drove up and Mr. Wm. Hussey presented an order from the speaker for twelve chairs in front of the hall. Hussey declined to receive the chairs mentioned and insisted on taking the fine walnut arm chairs inside the bar used for visitors, and took them instead. These chairs could not have cost less than $10 or $12 each. Besides this, he took one of the pivot casirs used by the members with a cushion seat and a water cooler, neither of which were on his order. The order was also taken away, as he stated, to have the two last named articles added to it, and has not been returned to the messenger. Next came Delegate Urell with a wagon and took away five of the members chairs, as he said, to have them repaired. The chairs could not have cost less than $20 each, and were perfectly sound and needing no repairs. Mr. Trimble then came and removed the chair used by the Speaker, which cost $35, and the desk and chair used by himself without any order, saying that he did not need an order. This was about 4 o'clock, and the messenger, Beverly, states that when he (Trimble) came he appeared to be surprised at what had been done by the others, and pulling out ten cents, told Beverly to ge up to the governor's office at once and inform the governor. He obeyed orders, and be-iere his arrival there he saw Dr. Tindail on the street, and leaving the street car, communicated to him the fact. Dr. Tindall ordered him to return, and let nothing more be removed, and to take a list of such articles and the names of the persons who had taken them, so that he could have them all prosecuted for larceny. He returned as soon as possible, and was told by the other messengers that Mr. Trimble had taken his desk and chair. Late in the evening Dolegate Perkins called with a wagon and took his borrowed the chair and desk lately occupied by him to carry home his books and papers. To the Speaker of House of Delegates? The large mirror used in the washroom which cost $66 has mysteriously disappeared and no one can tell who took it. All the towels, combs. brushes, inkstands, soap, and even the nail brushes used at the wash stand have been re-moved and the whole place has an appearance of desolation. It is said that one of the delegates took a costly feather duster and running the handle down inside his waistbands through one of the legs of his pants and battoning up the feather end under his vest walked off with it. The portraits of the ex-mayors hanging in the hall have not been taken as has been ramored about town. It is but justice to Speaker Shepherd to say that when the order for the clock | in filling the market with first-class butchers, was shown him late in the day he denied having written it, saying that he knew nothing of it. It is not true, as stated, that articles have been purloined from the Council Chamber.

It is supposed that she committed suicide.

The coroner was notified, and, after hearing the statement of several of her relatives and acquaintances to the effect that she has lately showed symptoms of an impaired mind, decided that it was a case of suicide while laboring under a temporary aberration of mind. The body was turned over to a brother-in-law of the deceased-Mr. Benjamin Gross-for burial.

The Washington Market Trouble. THE BUTCHERS DETERMINE TO "STICK A meeting of the butchers and other dealers in the Center Market was held at Marden & King's at 1 o'clock to-day. Mr. B. S. Elliot was called to the chair. He stated that he was proud to-day of the position taken by the butchers. He understood not that there was an open war on the company, but that the butchers simply objected to paying such large bonuses as would be detrimental to their interests—such as they could not afford. The had proposed to pay rent day in regard to a wholesale cleaning out of the furniture, etc., of the legislative halls by some of the late members, and have sent a reporter as usual, and that was enough. He urged that they stand united, and believed the public world to make inquiry into the matter. From the particulars below it will be seen that the steries support them

Mr. C. D. Fearson was appointed secretary.
Mr. B. F. Hunt was called on an addressed the meeting. He had determined not to pay any bonus, and believed that ne would be supported in it He hastily glanced at the condi-tion of things in the old market and stated that on the organization of the present company he was one of the committee who waited on the officers of the company. The committee were told that when the stalls were sold they would be heirlooms. What did they nowpay? By his figures he had paid over Sit per square foot now. He would not pay any bonus and did not mean to leave the market except by force, for he claimed that the ground was his.

Mr. Hoffman sald his counsel, Messrs. Cox and Merrick advise that they stand firm and do not go near the sale. Mr. Elliot .- We had better stick. Mr. Hoffman offered a resolution that they band themselves to stand by each other until the injunction be decided, and if it fails we will leave the market in a body unless the company agrees to our terms; adopted. Mr. Hoffman caused to be read section 15 of the charter of the market company, watel reads as follows:

THE FOLLOWING NOTICE has been ordered to be served June 30th upon all dealers: WASHINGTON MARKET COMPANY, ? July 1, 1874. -: Your right to occupy stand o stall No. -, for two years from July 1, 1872, having this day expired you are hereby again notified to quit and deliver up the same to the company on this day, according to the market regulations. Any dealer remaining in occupancy of his stall or stand after this date will be a trespasser upon the property of the company, will be liae for all damages arising therefrom and to suit for such damages; also to summary ejection and prosecution, under the regulations, at any time, at the will of the company, without fur her notice. Any delay or forbearance on the part of the impany to enforce their full rights against any occupant cannot be deemed as a waiver of those rights, but the trespasser may expect to see them enforced at any time and in any manner. P. S. SMITH, Clerk.

The sales of stalls, other than butchers', being completed or as ured, it is the intention of the company, before selling the butchers' stalls, to make an extended advertisement in the principal cities and to sell the butchers' stalls at ano tion to new dealers at the appropriate time. They are certain that there will be no difficulty who will satisfactorily serve the public.

Some of the finest specimens of sign painting ever seen here are the work of Mr. William bleder, located at No. 931 D street north west His designs are unique, and the finish being perfect, nothing is wanting to make them attractive. Mr. R. is an industrious young man, just commencing business for himself, after several years experience in sign writing for others, and the work he has already put out fully equalhe assures us his prices are much below others.

REAL ESTATE AND GENERAL BROKERAGE. Among the many houses interested in the above lines in Washington none stand higher in the estimation of those who know them best than the firm of W. W. Cox & Son. Prompt attention, close care for the interest of patrons, and quick returns is their motto. See advertisement elsewhere.

MILLIONS OF MONEY .- The expression, "mil lions of money," is so frequently indulged in by people that it is difficult to realize there is mply reality about it. Yet such is the case. The next and last gift concert of the Public ibrary of Kentneky will witness the distribution of $2,500,000 to the ticket-holders. At this magnificent distribution there are 100,000 tickets and 20,000 prizes, with such prizes as $250,000, $100,000, $75,000, $50,000, &c., &c. It is delicious to think that a single ticket may in a moment transform a penniless unfortunate into the proud possessor of $250,600, all in cash. Such may, and probably will, be the case. Then who would be without a ticket?
